

The Butterfly Who Found Her Colors

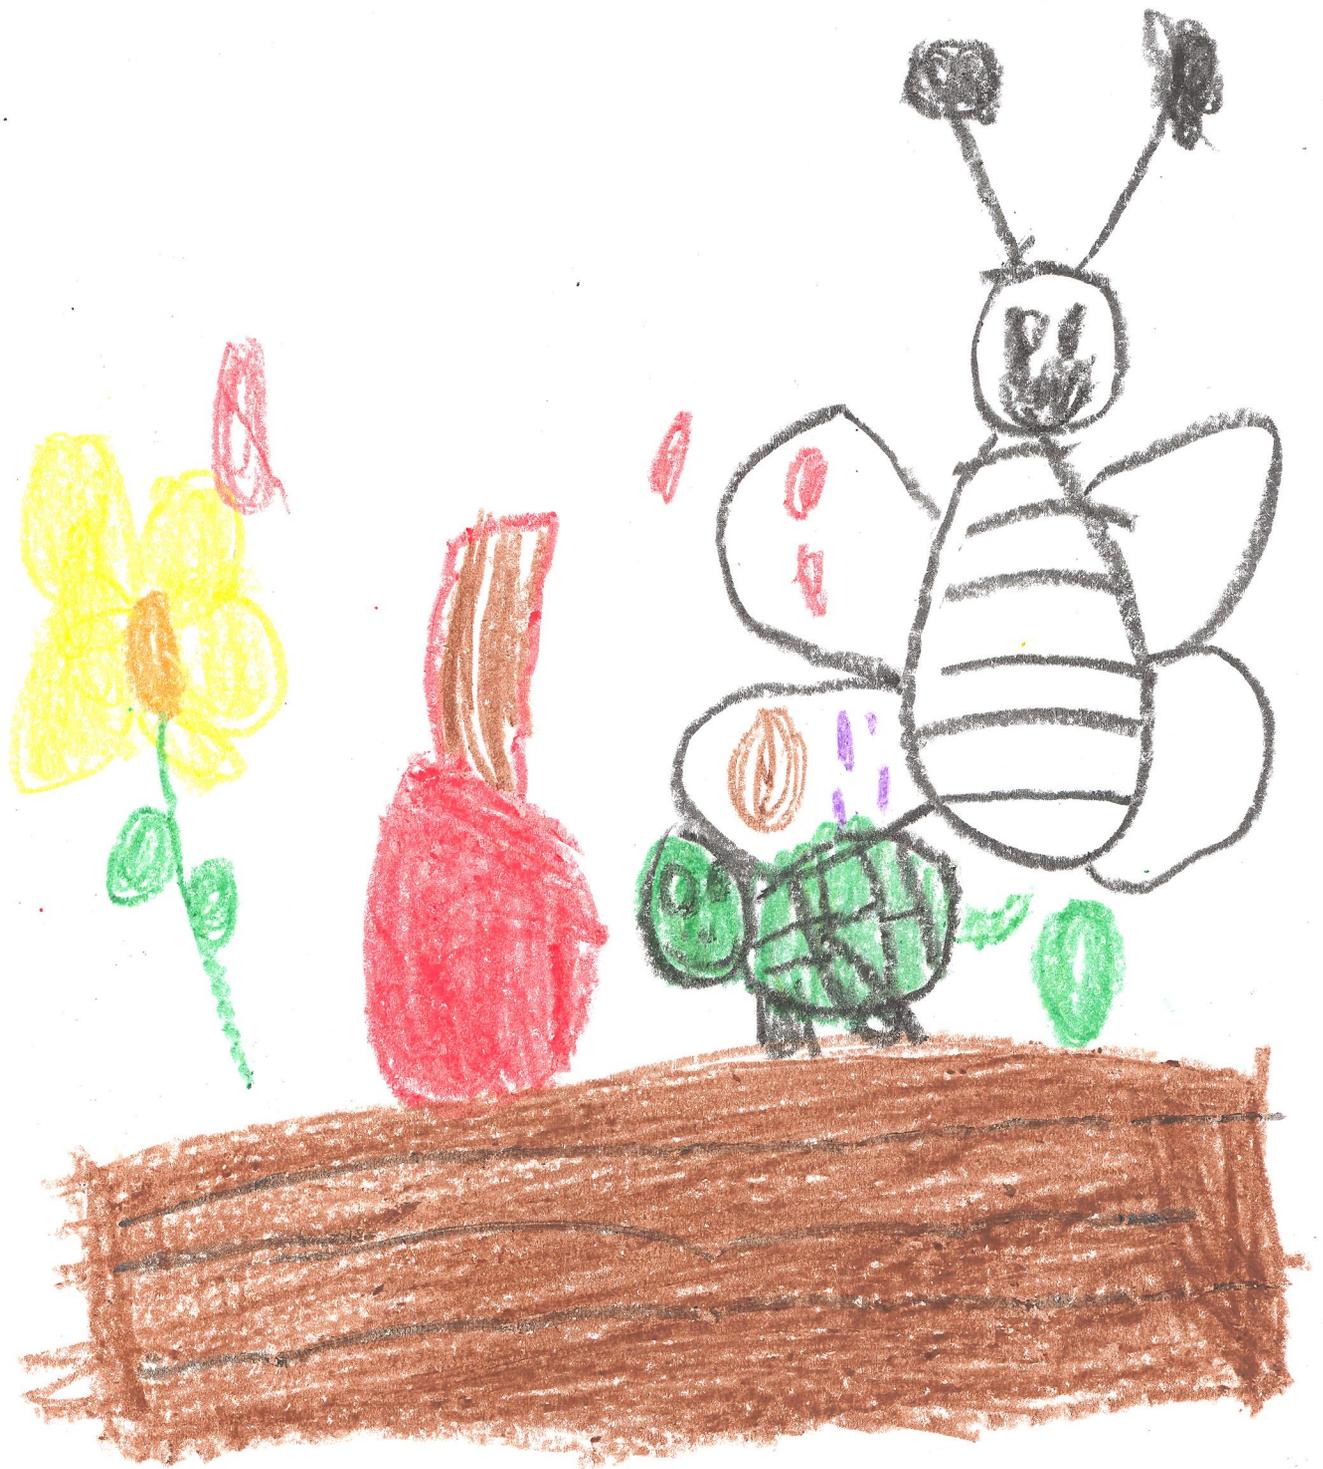

Once upon a time there was a butterfly with white wings. She likes to show off her beautiful white wings.

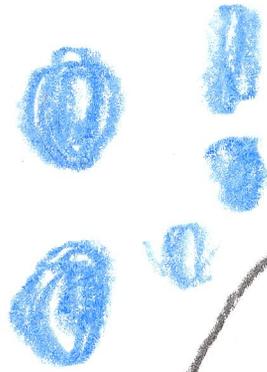

One morning she found a pig rolling in the mud. The pig said. "Hey watch this!" He rolled over and splashed mud on her left wing.

The next day she went flying in the forest to show her wings off more. There was a squirrel up in a tree eating a plumb. He dripped juice onto the butterfly's left wing.

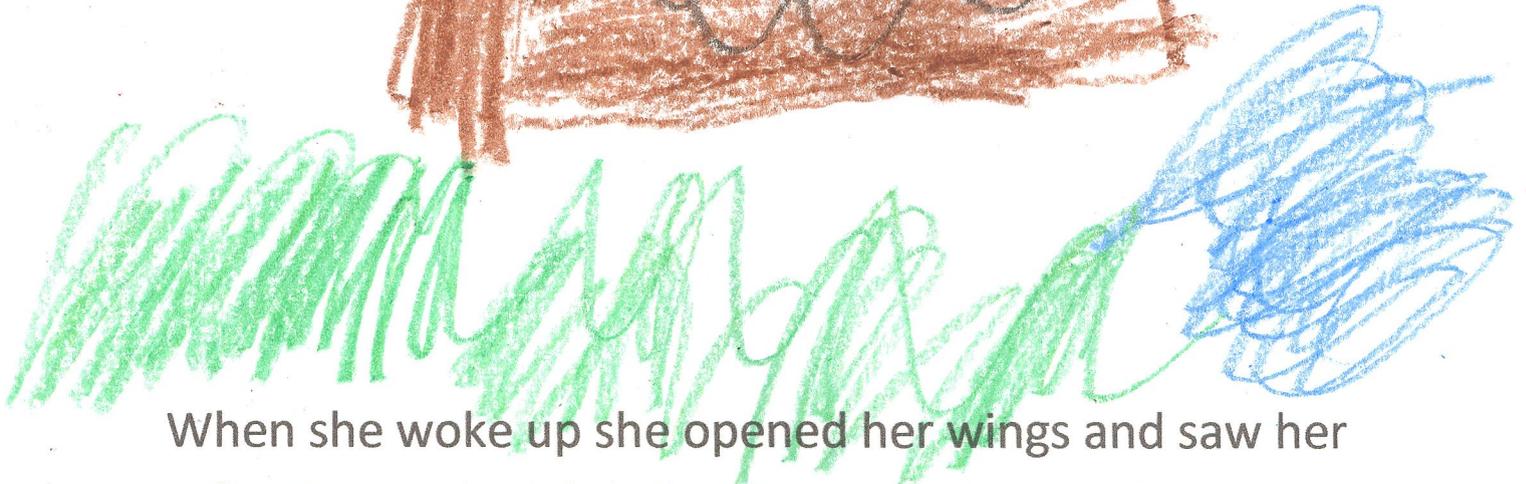

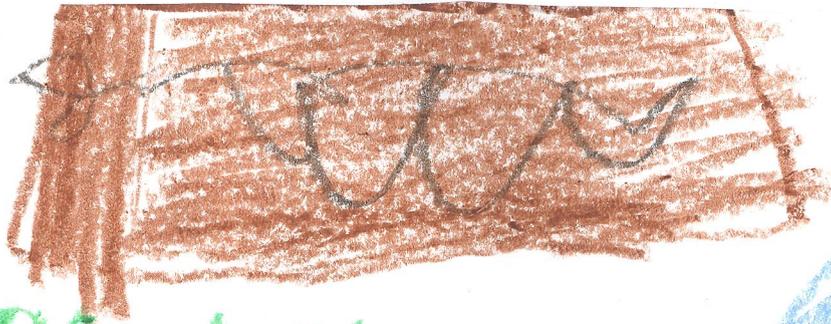

The next day she saw a turtle in the garden eating a tomato. He took a bite and squirted tomato juice on her left wing.

The next day she saw a bear picking blueberries. The bear thought she was a honey bee that he took honey from so he threw blueberries at her to make her go away.

The butterfly was sad because her wing was so dirty. She took a little nap on a log by the lake. When she landed her wings closed together.

When she woke up she opened her wings and saw her reflection in the lake. She discovered she had two beautiful matching wings. She was happy again.

The end.
